

Course-taking in humanities subjects at the high school level increased significantly from 1982 to 2009, and more than doubled in the study of languages other than English.